La Porte County Greenway Inventory

This map is a compilation of many of the trail opportunities that La Porte County has to offer. It is a starting point for the La Porte County mini-urban trail network shown. Parks, reserves, and open areas provide opportunities for walking, connecting points for trails across county and state lines. Lakes, rivers, and open areas can provide places for trails to begin, end, and join with other trails. Existing trails can be linked together in a greenway system throughout and across county and state lines. Bike lanes can be combined to provide more recreational links between major sites and communities. Trails and greenways under development can also be utilized as new trails, forming a continuous circuit connecting all other trail types. Abandoned rail corridors, power line corridors, and pipeline corridors can be utilized as future trails linking the major components of the greenway system. Major shopping centers, historic sites, courthouses, libraries, and museums are some of the major attractions located on the map that serve as destination points along trails. A map of the entire County is sure to have many more attractions that can be added to the map as opportunities for linkage in a county and regional greenway plan.
